STATEMENT OF THE WEST END

to Tonopah, where they could have a conference. This was readily granted, resulting in these gentlemen deciding that a lawsuit should be avoided if possible, and that they would use their best efforts for a peaceable settlement of the differences.

After this interview the above parties, acting for their respective companies, signed up the following agreement, which was intended to guarantee peace pending conferences to be held by the principal officials of both companies.

The Proposed Agreement.

Extension of Time.

The date of this agreement was February 21st, 1914, wherein it was proposed that both companies should suspend operations in disputed territory for the period beginning February 24th and ending March 15th, with the stipulation that the suspension should be confined to the territory bounded by vertical planes with the right for either party to enter, inspect and survey all the workings of the other in all parts of their respective claims. During that period neither party was to commence any action or proceeding involving the ownership or right to mine said ground. Upon the termination of this period each party was permitted to take such action as it may be advised. This agreement was entered into without prejudice to the property rights of any of the parties.

By mutual consent on March 11th this agreement was extended until ten days after notice by either party. The statement continues as follows:

After many conferences covering a period of about three weeks, at which there were present Clyde A. Heller, President; Frederick Bradshaw, Superintendent; and H. C. Brougher, a large stockholder, of the Jim Butler Tonopah Mining Company, and R. F. Edwards, Vice-President, and C. B. Zabriskie, a director, of the West End Consolidated Mining Company, another agreement was drawn up, was acceptable to all the parties present as a final settlement, and intended to avoid litigation, and forever do away with possible future trouble.

It was agreed by all parties that they would use their best efforts to have the settlement ratified by their Board of Directors.

This agreement opens with a recital of the corporate standing of each company and continues with a statement of facts concerning the veins in dispute. The preamble includes a clause for recognizing any discovery of new veins other than those known to exist and it is proposed for the Butler to convey to the West End an undivided one-half interest in and to all veins that pass downward on their dip from the ground embraced in the West End lode claim of the West End Company into the ground of the Jim Butler, and the Butler further grants an undivided half interest in and to all veins which may be found to pass downward on their dip from the mining ground of the Butler company, so far as such veins are embraced within the boundaries of the West End Company. The West End Company also grants and conveys to the Butler an undivided half interest in all veins which pass downward on their dip from the West End claim into the ground of the Butler company so far as said veins are south of the south side line of the West End claim and between perpendicular planes passing through lines made by prolonging the end lines of the West End lode claim and the West End Company grants to the Butler an undivided one-half interest in all veins which on their downward dip pass from the Butler into the West End claim.

Division of Costs.

Provision was made for dividing the cost of extracting, milling and reducing all ore wherever found, with the stipulation that due diligence shall be exercised and also for the use of the West End shaft with compensation for the same. Each party was to pay the other one-half of all expenses incurred in mining, developing, prospecting and removing ore and other substances. Provision was made that either party might give notice that it would no longer be liable for any part of the cost of mining, developing, etc., and, after such notice, such party would be freed from further liability. In such event the other party was to be allowed to continue to prospect and develop any veins conveyed by the agreement and retain the full value of the ore extracted. All settlements to be made on the fifteenth of each month.

The agreement then continues as follows:

Considerations and Boundaries. "In consideration thereof, it is further agreed that the West End Company shall pay to the Butler Company one-half of the value (after deducting the cost of mining) of all ore heretofore extracted from beneath the surface of that part of the mining ground, mining claims or mining lands of the Butler Company described as follows:

"Bounded on the North by the south side line of the West End Lode Claim, on the East by the line which would be a prolongation of the East end line of the West End Lode

Claim, on the west by a line parallel to and four hundred and twenty (420) feet westerly from the said Eastern Boundary, and on the South by the south line of the mining property of the Butler Company. The said value of said ore shall be ascertained by prompt accounting between the parties hereto and the payment in this paragraph promised shall be evidenced by six (6) notes of equal amount, bearing the date of said accounting, executed by the West End Company to the Butler Company, bearing interest at the rate of six per cent (6 per cent) per annum, payable monthly. One of said notes shall mature within five (5) days after its date, and one thereof shall mature each month thereafter, for five (5) months. Each note, with the interest thereon, shall be paid by the West End Company at maturity.

"This contract and agreement is intended to adjust all differences existing between the parties hereto, and that certain contract dated the 10th day of December, 1912, between the parties hereto is hereby by mutual consent rescinded."

"It is mutually understood and agreed that it is the intention of the parties hereto that after the execution of this agreement each of the parties hereto will own an undivided one-half interest in and to the parts of veins hereto conveyed, and this contract, agreement and conveyance shall be construed to effect that purpose."

Submitted to Directors. The West End statement goes on to say:

"We were able to call a meeting of the directors promptly and succeeded in having them ratify the agreement, which was then forwarded to Clyde A. Heller in Philadelphia, for the action of the Jim Butler Tonopah Mining Company Board.

"This document, as will be seen, was not a PROPOSAL from the West End Consolidated Mining Company, but a finished agreement drawn up as a final settlement and having the O. K. of the principal officials of both companies, and it was believed that the Jim Butler Tonopah Mining Company Board of Directors would ratify same."

"On March 19th, 1914, Mr. Frederick Bradshaw called upon our Vice-President, Mr. B. F. Edwards, in San Francisco, and showed him a telegram from Clyde A. Heller, which instructed Mr. Bradshaw to advise that the Jim Butler Board of Directors had rejected the proposed settlement, and to have attorneys draw up a formal notice, to be presented to our Vice-President, personally, said notice to cancel the agreement entered into between Clyde A. Heller and Vice-President Edwards made under date of February 21st, 1914, and hereinafter set forth."

"In accordance with same, formal notice was served upon Vice-President Edwards, March 19th, 1914, and is as follows:

"You are hereby notified that the agreement made and entered into between the West End Consolidated Mining Company and the Jim Butler Tonopah Mining Company, bearing date February 21, 1914, is hereby terminated and annulled."

"This notice is given pursuant to an endorsement on said contract signed by both of said parties extending the time during which said agreement should remain operative to a period of ten (10) days from and after the date of the service by either party of the other of its desire to so terminate said agreement. Said agreement will therefore cease to have any effect on the eleventh day after the service upon you of this notice, the respective parties being on that date restored to their respective status as it existed prior to the making of said agreement."

"This notice is given by direction of the board of directors of the Jim Butler Tonopah Mining company."

"B. F. EDWARDS."

Very Short Notice.

"The above is the shortest notice that could be given us for cancellation of the agreement. Mr. Bradshaw had no information of a counter proposition of any kind from his company, leaving us no alternative but to prepare for litigation which was evident from the action of the Jim Butler board and from the prompt notice canceling the peace pact."

Demand for $125,000.

On March 24th the following official communication was received by us:

"At our adjourned board meeting held today I presented to the directors the form of agreement executed by your company, dated March 12, covering settlement with this company of the ore in the disputed territory."

"I regret to say that the board declined to accept this proposition, and directed me to notify your company that the temporary agreement preserving the status quo would be terminated on March 30. I immediately telegraphed our Mr. Bradshaw to give you formal notice to this effect."

"I was directed by the board of directors to make a counter proposition to your company, good until noon here, March 28, as follows: That the Jim Butler Tonopah Mining company will accept $125,000 in full settlement for the ore removed by your company from our ground, with the understanding that you are to relinquish all further claim for ore in our ground."

"I called up Mr. Bradshaw and told him the above by telephone, and he advised me that Mr. Smith is expected to arrive in New York Saturday and he would take the matter up with him then."

This was signed by Clyde Heller, president.

Reply of West End.

"Under date of March 25th, we replied as follows:

"Yours of the 24th last received yesterday, advising of the action of your board upon your submission to them of the settlement made by you, Mr. Bradshaw, and Mr. Brougher, with Mr. Zabriskie and myself, acting for the West End company, and pursuant to which agreement of settlement the form of agreement executed by the West End company was prepared for submission to the directors of the Jim Butler Tonopah Mining company."

"As the action of your board, and the counter proposition you made leaves us to determine our rights and pursue them as we may be advised, with a probable settlement of our differences in the courts, I join in your regrets. Personally I see no reason, economic or otherwise, why the West End Consolidated Mining company should accept the proposition made by your company. From my standpoint it is not a proposition of settlement of recognized differences in rights claimed by the respective parties, but tacitly involves the confession of the West End Consolidated Mining company that they have no interest in the vein from which the ore was taken."

No Desire for Peace. "There is nothing in the formal notice from the Jim Butler Tonopah Mining company to indicate a desire for peace. On the contrary it is in the nature of a demand that we pay a certain sum of money and agree to relinquish all further claim to ore in the ground. Our reply speaks for itself."

"It will be noticed that their so-called counter proposition carried with it the following qualification: 'Good until noon here March 28th.' This precise language, coupled with the fact that they saw fit to telegraph the cancellation of the peace pact, put us on notice that there was nothing left but a lawsuit, and we immediately ordered our attorneys to prepare for same."

"At the expiration of the agreement which was canceled by the Jim Butler Tonopah Mining company, we immediately began work on our vein, with instructions to continue to mine and extract ore until we were enjoined by the courts, if such should be the case."

"While we regret that a settlement could not be arrived at without resort to the courts, we are absolutely confident of maintaining our rights to the vein for all time to come, and feel certain that our stockholders would not, under the circumstances, have us act differently."
